Here are a few other popular that can really help improve your results if you aren't taking them already. Protein and creatine are perhaps the most two most important basic supplements you can use daily to achieve the results you want. Like many other athletes who use nutritional supplements, Jason Gould had never seen evidence of anyone suffering an adverse health reaction to an Androstenedione-based product. That is, until he became the evidence. "I'm never using another supplement," said Gould, who ended up in the hospital after taking Andro. "You think it's safe because you see Mark McGwire and all these guys taking it. But it's not." Gould, a former football player at Division I-AA Monmouth (N.J.) University, told ESPN.com that his misadventure began when he received a free bottle of "Andro-forte 100" in the mail with the order of a book, Body Opus, by Dan Duchaine. The bottle was accompanied by a letter from Duchaine, requesting that he take the new product and get back to him with feedback. Ä ÄJason Gould, in his Central Regional (N.J.) High School uniform. Since Gould, 19, recognized Duchaine's name from reading muscle magazines, he felt secure in taking the pills. Sure enough, there were no problems the first few times he used the testosterone-boosting product, which according to the bottle is distributed by a company called Essentials, Inc. "It makes you feel hyper," he said. "I don't know if it works, but it makes you think it does." The problem occurred on Sept. 28, when for the first time he took Andro together with creatine, a supplement he had also used alone in the past, with no adverse side effects. Less than 30 minutes after ingesting the supplements -- which is when the Andro boost usually kicks in -- he felt himself getting extremely hot. At the time, he was watching television on in his mother's home in Bayville, N.J. "I got up and went to the bathroom and looked in the mirror, and noticed immediately that my face was Red before my own eyes, "Gould said." I would tear off the shirt and my body also put red, so my legs. Oxygen and a cardÄäco monitor, its arterial pressure was high, was taken to the community medical center in the nearby RÄo Toms, where the world controlled their condition with medications and was released. What caused the adverse reaction remains a Mystery for Gould. The music of the emergency room that was not sure of what the problem caused, but speculated that it suffered some type of reaction alleges to the supplement cöctel, he said. Jason Gould to the hospital. Shuchaine , contacted by ESPN.com, speculates that Gould had an adverse reaction to an unusual ingredient: 40 milligrams of niacin, which is included in the Andro-Forte 100 fose. Allows Perso Know how the ingredients of the päldora, including androstene, have reached the bloodstream, so that they can improve their training. "We are all accustomed from the body of bodybuilding," said Shuchaine, author of the Underground steroid manual and another literature that helps athletes to use illegal drugs and legal nutritional supplements. "I had a reaction to the niacin, and it was not accustomed." Gould thinks there are that. "I have read that I also do that, but this was an extreme case," he said. "I don't buy (shower explanation). I think it had to do with the mixture of the two ingredients, Andro and Creatine, with the nacin." Shuchaine said that Essentials Inc., based in New Jersey, is owned by Allison Murray, her fiancé.
